

Recovery of Diamond Earring

Lost Diamond Earring

Whilst playing polo I always wear my family heirloom earrings I received on my 21st birthday. It just so happens that I had a nasty fall that day and was rushed to hospital.

When my parents arrived at the Polo Club, and we waited for an ambulance the first thing my mother said was "You've lost your earring".

All priorities went to searching for the earring due to the sentimental value of it. I knew where I had fallen and had Strava tracked my route on my watch of where I was playing. However, the earring is a white and yellow gold diamond, and I didn't think anyone would be able to help me find it.

I Googled round Cheshire metal detectors and came across Neil's website.

Dear Neil,

I can't tell you how delighted and happy I am to be reunited with a very sentimental piece of jewellery. I have learnt my lesson not to play in such important jewellery! My worry was that the field continued to have polo played on it after I lost my earring so could have ended up anywhere on the field. I had looked around for it, but it is so small I thought best to contact you with the right technology to help me find it. I am so appreciative of you calling to the club the next day and offering to help at no charge. It was ever so kind of you, and it made my day being found so quickly! Thank you,
